Dr. Guy Kashi has over 15 years of experience in management and consulting. He has worked with CEOs, VPs and DMs especially in the field of improving organization integration.

Guy also worked with Israel Ministry of Foreign Affairs as consultant in organization improvement projects.

Guy worked at Intel Company (1998-2003) as Group Leader in few of the most complicated and expensive areas. He led many critical international processes and lectured advanced courses at Intel University.

Guy speaks Hebrew and English and presents Adizes Methodology to executives and CEOs. He teaches Adizes theories in the academic. In the last ten years, Guy has worked as Senior Lecturer in Jerusalem College of Engineering. He has also taught many managerial and consultant courses as part of Undergraduate and Graduate courses at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev and at the College of management in Israel.

Guy holds Industrial and management B. Sc. (1997), Industrial and management M. Sc (1998, with special distinction) and Industrial and management Ph. D. (2003), from the Department of Industrial and Management Engineering at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev, Beer-Sheva, Israel.

Guy and his lovely wife Osnat live in Israel and enjoy raising four kids: Tal, Chen, Nitzan and Aviv. Guy joined the Adizes organization in 2015.
