Diana's main areas of expertise are business processes, internal communication and people management. Her career started in 2003 as a junior consultant in HR, and since then she is permanently seeking solutions and instruments that will allow both companies and people work together in a more efficient way.

During her professional experience Diana has worked in many different roles including recruiter, HR Project Manager, HR Business Partner, consultant, trainer and facilitator. Diana has worked in Russia, Moldova and Romania.

Diana has gained expertise working with complex issues surrounding human capital and human diversity.

Her first introduction to the Adizes methodology was in 2015. That exposure opened her vision and mind about how to develop the complex relationship between organizations and humans.

Since then Diana is dedicating her professional life to helping clients identify their goals, define best practices.

She enjoys helping people to integrate and grow through facilitation sessions, trainings, and advanced communications. She teaches the practice of being accepting of the way people are and being less focused on the way ideally things should work.

Diana works primarily within the IT, banking, logistic, FMCG and retail sector.

Diana works in Russian, Romanian and English. She lives and works in Moldova.
