As a certified Adizes Associate, Humberto Padilla focuses on presenting the concepts of the Adizes Methodology and delivering consulting services internationally in profit and not-for-profit organizations. His experience in diverse industries brings exceptional insight to the facilitation of organizational change programs.

Before joining Adizes, Humberto founded a company that provides logistics services across Mexico. His primary effort was devoted to developing and consolidating business units. He currently serves on the board of directors. Besides providing consulting services, Humberto regularly lectures on the Adizes Methodology.

He has established relationships with various universities and other educational and development institutions where he is often called upon to provide insight about organizational transformation. Humberto holds an Industrial Engineering degree from the Tecnológico de Monterrey and the Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology.

Presently, he is going through an MBA program with the Thunderbird School of Global Management in Arizona. He currently resides in Guadalajara, Mexico.
