As an Adizes Associate, Joaquin Koloffon teaches Adizes methodology and delivers consulting services guiding clients through The Adizes Program for Organizational Transformation.

His experiences in international and local companies as a Customer Relationship Manager and Operations Manager helped him develop strong capabilities in customer service, problem solving, negotiation and project & people management. Joaquin has leveraged these experiences for the facilitation of organizational change programs.

Before joining Adizes, Joaquin worked in leasing and global banking companies as the liaison for operations in Mexico, US, Costa Rica & India.

He became member of the core management group responsible for the annual strategic business plan for LATAM a world renowned banking institution, being able to bring an enterprise perspective to team discussions and decision making, while building effective relationships and good judgment when working with others from diverse backgrounds and cultures.

Joaquin holds an Industrial Engineering Degree from the Tecnologico de Monterrey and the Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology.

Joaquin lectures in English and Spanish, and he currently resides in Monterrey, Mexico.
