Rangsan Thammanee Wong has over thirty years of experience in corporate finance and strategy. He has successfully turned around several public and private companies. He started his career in the financial industry in New York City in 1985 before returning to Asia.

Rangsan has worked and lived in Hong Kong, Singapore, Japan, and Thailand, USA. His experiences include advising and raising capital for private infrastructure including toll-roads and mass transit system. He has structured and managed a pension fund and works in investment banking. He currently sits on the boards for a few public listed companies in Thailand.

Rangsan first became involved with the Adizes Methodology in 2007. Since then he has been trained in Phases I, II and III and has introduced many companies in and around Thailand to the Adizes Transformation Program. Rangsan has a real passion for transforming companies so they can become the best in their class.

Rangsan earned his Bachelor of Science from the Marriott School, Brigham Young University in, Provo Utah and an MBA from Joseph M. Katz Graduate School of Business at the University of Pittsburgh.

He currently lives in Bangkok, Thailand with his four children. He works in both English and Thai.
